THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

THERE is no doubt the desire of every President to be able to record that his year of Presidency was "outstanding". However the exact yardstick for measuring what constitutes a rating of "outstanding" that will meet with everyone's approval is not easy to determine.

To be outstanding calls for that little extra effort and enthusiasm that makes all the difference. The Cadet chosen for the Wing Commander Don Freeman Scholarship is being given in recognition for the interest, enthusiasm and ability that he has displayed. Much can be done by Institute members by informing Cadets that they may know of this scholarship and it is my sincere hope that the Cadet Corps of the three Services will have at least one of their members apply.

Your active interest and enthusiasm in the affairs of the Institute means much to its success. The relations between the Institute and the Garrison Mess have been most pleasant in the past, I intend to keep them that way. I am sure members will agree with me that the dignity of the Mess must be preserved at all times and that as ex-officers we should not forget our support to the Reserve Forces, and our loyalty to Her Majesty the Queen, Canada, and the British Commonwealth of Nations.

To me personally, this is an outstanding year. I fully appreciate the honour of serving as your President for the 36th year of the Institute and wish to thank you for the honour accorded me, it is a double honour, it is the first time since the Institute was formed in 1920 that a Naval representative has been elected to the office of President and I am proud to be that first representative.

It is indeed a privilege to belong to the Alberta United Services Institute.

Don't you agree?

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

IN perusing annual addresses submitted by Past Presidents, I have found they normally indicate pleasure in reporting a very successful year both from the point of view of functions held, and financial gain.

During 1955, although we have also made a small financial gain and have had addresses by three prominent speakers our activities have been overshadowed by the complete lack of a home base, through the fire which completely eliminated the Garrison Officers' Mess more than a year ago. Each year seems to have its highlights, but 1955 will, I am sure, be long remembered as the year of the burnt offering. To say the fire did not have a very definite bearing on our ability to function in a normal manner would be a fallacy. However, we had the honour of having as our guests, Group Captain Bader, D.S.O.-Bar, B.F.C.-Bar, Legion D'Honneur and Croix de Guerre; The Hon. Richard Wood, M.P., son of Lord Halifax, and Lt-Col, Frank Owen, O.B.E., a distinguished British journalist. Arrangements also were made to hear Gen. Lucius Clay but unfortunately through illness, the General requested postponement until some time during 1956.

● Outstanding Address

In respect to the main functions sponsored by our Institute, the Vimy Dinner and the Military Ball, I would like to make a few general remarks. As our guest speaker at the Vimy Dinner we were very fortunate in again having Major-General Macklin, O.B.E., C.D., who gave an outstanding address on Communism. The comments of all attending were indeed most favourable, and I am sure the majority will agree Gen. Macklin is one of the finest speakers we have had the pleasure of hearing.

The difficulty, gentlemen, which seems to be a perennial one, is that of attendance. Much has been said on this matter during Annual Meetings in the past with the suggestion of a possible name change. In other words re-designing "Vimy Dinner" to another name possibly of a more modern nature. That is from a military standpoint. The outcome of these discussions has always been that the name should be retained, and for many reasons I believe rightfully so.

● Mess Dinner

The point I would like to forcibly make is that this function is in essence the Annual Mess Dinner of the Institute, and as such should be supported by every member who can possibly attend. If it had not been for the Regular Army Officers who attended in strength to hear Gen. Macklin, the function would have been indeed disappointing. Only some 50 members of the Institute were present and this figure is giving the benefit of any doubt.

I would sincerely urge therefore that for the coming year each member look upon this function as an Institute Mess Dinner, if in fact it is to survive. Our other main function, the Military Ball, was a complete success.

● Financial.

The past year has been a successful one from a financial viewpoint. As we are all aware our by-laws have been changed to incorporate an increase in dues, with a view to setting aside a certain amount annually into a building fund. It was felt such a fund should be initiated without further delay as insurance against the possibility of our society being without a home, brought about by events over which neither ourselves or the Garrison Officers' Mess have control. I am pleased to state the increase in dues has been favourably accepted as indicated by receipts for the present year.

In conclusion, gentlemen, I wish, on behalf of our Institute, to thank the President and members of the Sergeants' Mess who have been most co-operative in making their facilities available. Also I wish to thank the press and radio, for their reporting of our various functions. Thanks are also due to the Officer Commanding Tecumseh for permitting a joint New Years' Day reception at H.M.C.S. Tecumseh. Last, but not least, I desire to thank the President and members of the Garrison Officers' Mess—I have been trying to think of what for, particularly this year. However, I am sure there will continue to be that close co-operation that has prevailed on such a friendly basis for so many years.

● Directorate Thanked

Personally I wish to thank all members of the directorate for their very willing co-operation. Thanks are also due to our past Honorary Secretary-Treasurer, Col. D. G. L. Cunningham, and past Librarian, Major Harold Chambers, and special thanks to their successors, F/L. D. Austin Lane and Surg. Lt-Cdr. D. Shute, respectively, who have so ably filled these vital posts.

In conclusion I desire to thank all for your co-operation and interest in our Institute and I sincerely hope that the year 1956 will be the best since the inception of our Institute.

SECRETARY-TREASURER'S REPORT

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

In presenting this, the Secretary-Treasurer's report, I would remind you that I only took over this position late in 1955. I have therefore prepared this report in conjunction with the previous Secretary, Col. D. G. L. Cunningham.

● Meetings

The year started off well in spite of having no mess room in the Armories, due to the fire. However, owing to the kindness of the Officer Commanding and Officers' 1st P.P.C.L.I. we were able to hold two very successful meetings in their mess at Currie Barracks.

The Hon. Richard Wood, M.P., gave us a most instructive lecture, and Lt.-Col. Frank Owen, O.B.E., a very amusing one.

The Vimy Dinner was not as well attended as we had hoped. Major Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, O.B.E., C.D., was the speaker and his address on Communism was outstanding.

A well attended meeting was held in the Garrison Sergeants' Mess when the by-laws relating to dues were amended, where it was recalled that the fees set in 1920 were still applicable and it was realized that some revision in 1955 was due.

● Freeman Memorial Scholarship

The scholarship in memory of W/Cdr. Don Freeman, D.F.C., was awarded to Air Cadet Eugene Gerald Brailsford, who unfortunately has not yet qualified. As time goes on there is no doubt that this scholarship will become more widely known among the Cadets and their officials.

● Receptions

Due to the unfortunate fire, the Presidents' Reception, instituted in 1954 could not be held. It is hoped to combine the 1955 and 1956 Presidents in a Reception when the mess is completed. The New Year's Reception on January 1st, 1955, was attended by a large number of members and their friends.

- Grant

The Institute again received an annual grant from the Department of National Defence which is gratefully acknowledged.

- Finances

As Treasurer I submit the Audited Financial Statement. I should mention that the books were audited before being turned over to me.

- Resignations

In 1955 two notables resigned office: Col. Cunningham, Honorary Secretary-Treasurer, and Major Chambers, Librarian. These two gentlemen made outstanding contributions to the Institute. As Col. Cunningham's successor I promise to do my best to carry on his traditional efficient and constructive efforts.

AUDITOR'S REPORT

The President and Members,
The Alberta United Services Institute.

In accordance with your request, I have examined the balance sheet of The Alberta United Services Institute as at December 31, 1955, and the statement of revenue and expenses for the year ended on that date. I examined vouchers for disbursements and verified membership dues by examination of membership certificate stubs. I performed such verification of other revenue and the assets and liabilities as I considered appropriate and received all the information and explanations I required.

In my opinion, the balance sheet and related statement of revenue and expenses present a true and correct view of the affairs of the Institute as at December 31, 1955, and the results of operations for the year ended on that date, according to the best of my information and the explanations given to me and as shown by the books of the Institute.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

During the year 1955 the Institute Library has remained an interest of a small, but persistent, minority of members. The following books have been acquired by purchase:

1. "Lawrence of Arabia", Richard Aldington.
2. "General Gordon", Lord Elton.
3. "A Train of Powder", Rebecca West.
4. "The Dam Busters," Paul Brickhill.
5. "The Man Who Never Was," Ewen Montagu.

The following volumes were acquired by donation:

1. "History of the Calgary Highlanders '21 - 54',
Major Roy Farran.
2. "Winged Dagger", Major Roy Farran. Anonymous donor.
3. Jane's "Fighting Ships". Anonymous donor.
4. Jane's "All The World's Aircraft".
Donated by Col. Fred Scott.

My predecessor made an annual appeal for members to return books more promptly and I echo this appeal.

On two occasions during the past year I have been able to obtain books recommended to me by members. If at any time anyone has a suggestion for a suitable addition will they please contact me and I will do what I can within my budget allocation.

Finally I wish to recommend that $50 be voted to the Library for additions during 1956.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. SHUTE,
Honorary Librarian.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

THE Annual Meeting of The Alberta United Services Institute was held in the Garrison Sergeants' Mess at Mewata Armouries, Tuesday, January 31, 1956. The President, Lt.-Col. R. E. Lucy, M.B.E., M.C., C.D., was in the chair and the meeting opened at 8:45 p.m.

● Minutes

On motion the Minutes of the last Annual Meeting as published in The Journal be taken as read.

● President's Report

The President read his report and moved its acceptance. It was seconded and carried.

● Auditor's Report

Lieut. D. Morrison, the Auditor, read his report and moved its acceptance. It was seconded and carried.

● Financial Statement and Secretary-Treasurer's Report

F/L. D. A. Lane, Honorary Secretary-Treasurer, read his report and copies of the financial statement were distributed among the members. Its adoption was moved, seconded and carried.

● Library Report

Surg. Lt.-Cdr. D. Shute read his report and asked for the usual early library fund, his report being moved, seconded and carried.

● Scholarship

Reporting for the W/Cdr. Don Freeman Scholarship committee, the President stated that the one applicant who could prima facie qualify, Eugene Brailsford, had not obtained sufficient marks in his Christmas exams at the Calgary branch of the University of Alberta, but that the members of the committee were in favor of easing the conditions of the scholarship in this connection in view of the fact that this would be the first time that the scholarship is being awarded.

Lt.-Col. Jull, who helped with the organization details in connection with the award, explained the background and the ideas of the original committee. He suggested a modification of the conditions in this particular case.

It was moved by Lt.-Col. Jull and seconded by Capt. Turner that the terms of the W/Cdr. Don Freeman Scholarship award be modified this year and that E. Brailsford be given it if he passes his examinations in April of this year.

● Election of Officers

The following officers were elected by acclamation.

President—Capt. R. Jackson, O.B.E., V.R.D. (R.C.N.(R).

Vice-President—S/Ldr. H. L. Mackenzie.

Auditor—Lieut. D. Morrison.

Navy Director—Lt.-Cdr. D. McDiarmid, C.D.

Air Force Director—S/Ldr. G. M. Kelly, C.D.

Honorary Chaplain—Hon. Major Archdeacon E. H. Maddocks,
B.A., B.D.

Librarian—Surg. Lt.-Cdr. D. Shute.

Ballot for two army directors was then conducted and Major W. H. Baker and Lt.-Col. John Mooney were declared elected.

S/Ldr. Francis urged that it be made permissible to wear dark business suits at the Vimy Dinner as well as the usual formal dress and uniforms. The following resolution was duly moved and seconded and unanimously carried as an extraordinary resolution:

"Candidates otherwise eligible for ordinary membership, but whose residence is in Alberta outside a radius of twenty-five (25) miles from the Calgary Post Office, may be admitted to privileged membership at a fee of Five Dollars ($5.00) per year, payable in advance and such candidates whose residence is outside Alberta may be admitted to privileged membership at a nominal fee of One Dollar ($1.00) per year, payable in advance."

The President thanked the members for their support during his term of office. He then called on Capt. Jackson to take the chair.

Capt. Jackson took the chair and thanked the members for the honor of being President and asked for the support of the members.

Col. Cunningham moved a vote of thanks to the press and radio. S/L. Francis moved a vote of thanks to the outgoing directorate.

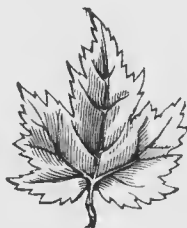

Brig. Lockett nominated Col. Cunningham for life membership in the Institute, outlining the latter's unique record in the army, as President of the Institute, and Honorary Secretary-Treasurer for eight years. The nomination was approved unanimously.

The President introduced Col. J. S. Ross, Calgary Area Commandant, to the meeting, and Col. Ross replied briefly and paid tribute to the usefulness of the Institute.

After the singing of "The Queen" the meeting was adjourned at 10:40 p.m.

Refreshments were then served.

(signed) D. AUSTIN LANE, F/L,
Honorary Secretary-Treasurer.

GRIM OUTLOOK FOR EUROPE

A GRIM warning that Europe would be lost to the West if there is a third war within five years was given to members of the Institute by Major Ernest Watkins, Calgary barrister, May 17.

Further, he cautioned, there will be no chance of an invasion "to get it back".

Maj. Watkins, who has been in Calgary for 18 months is a former British Broadcasting Corporation commentator. He enlisted with the British Territorial Army in 1939 and was promoted to the rank of major while with the war office from 1943 to 1945. He also was assistant editor of The Economist, a well known British publication on international affairs. He was introduced to the meeting by Captain Reginald Jackson, R.C.N.

● Two Possibilities

Maj. Watkins said there are two possibilities which may be considered at the present time.

The first is a war within five years and a war within 25 years, and what they would mean to the armed forces and civilians.

If there was a war within five years, he said, Europe would be lost and there would be no chance of an invasion by the Allied forces such as in 1944, and the defence of North America would be one of the main problems.

"There would be no likelihood of anyone going overseas in the true sense of the word," he stated. "Canada would not be a fighter there as before. Canada would be fighting with the United States forces in her own country."

● More Expendable

One of the main problems in this would be for Canada to maintain her independence if she fought with the U.S. forces. Canada would have to be active in her own interests and share her burdens with the United States allies. Canada would find that the United States' way of fighting would be that troops were expendable. The United States would be more ruthless with Canadian forces than was Great Britain.

Maj. Watkins said the Canadian Army is not a trained body of citizens, but a group of men which has chosen the army as its career. He said that in other years such men have been used as a nucleus to train others for combat, adding that he wondered if Canada should not be devoting more concentration to manpower "at present—and thinking more about the number of divisions which could be put in the field."

● Civil Defence Important

Dealing with the air force, he suggested that perhaps more time should be spent on having the air force work in close co-operation with the navy, and that the navy should have more than one carrier. In addition, the navy should have added submarine defence training.

Civil defence also will play an important part in a war which would be under way in five years, and Maj. Watkins wondered if "evacuation of major cities is the only answer". He thought it might be better to be killed in a major city such as Calgary than die of starvation en route to Banff in below zero weather.

"It isn't just a case of going somewhere and getting sandwiches and tea, a pat on the back and then told to get home before sunset. What of the sanitary arrangement? I would like to see if those things are being taken care of. Civil defence needs trained men," he stated.

● Use of Militia

Maj. Watkins also said he thought that the militia might be used in civil defence. "Maybe that is the answer," he said. "Anyway it is food for thought."

Dealing with a war in 25 years, Maj. Watkins said there is a great tendency on behalf of the cabinet and also the treasury to delay expenditures or outlays for defence. "The cabinet says there won't be a war for another 10 years," he said. "The treasury decides against any expenditures for that one year. Then when the next year rolls around, the same 10 years holds good. It isn't nine years. One year hasn't been deducted. It remains at 10 years . . . and so it goes along."

Maj. Watkins suggested there might be "minor" wars within the next 25 years.

● War in Middle East

He gave as an example the fight in Korea, stating the United States had fought that war as though she intended to win it, while

Canada and Britain fought because they did not want to be left out, but wanted to be on the band-wagon. He thought the most likely outbreak of a minor war would be in the Middle East.

"The United Kingdom," he stated, "must win out in the Middle East. It will be difficult to keep it as a minor war. If there is such a war Canada should not go into it, unless it is fought by the United Nations. Ceylon does not want naval bases, and it won't be more than 12 months before Signapore takes the same stand."

Maj. Watkins said there are a great many people in Canada who use the Quebec issue as an excuse for doing "very little" in the defence of Canada.

● Need of Training

He suggested that the next war may see the end of the air force as it was in the Second Great War, as guided missiles will take over, the navy will be used mainly to transport the artillery, and the artillery will be established once again.

He considered compulsory training was not the only point for manpower in Canada and a great many persons felt the training time was wasted. He stressed the need for training discipline, co-operation, loyalty to Canada and a sense of achievement.

INDIA'S ARMY PRAISED

COLONEL DOLLARD MENARD, D.S.O., Calgary commandant, told members of the Alberta United Services Institute that a battalion of troops from Northern India or Pakistan "is as good, if not a little better", than a battalion of British or Canadian troops.

Col. Menard, a former Canadian battalion commander who also took part in the Dieppe raid, made this statement during an Institute meeting held in the Officers' Mess, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Speaking to the subject of the Indian sub-continent, on which he is something of an expert, his point carried special emphasis with an audience composed primarily of veterans of the First and Second Great Wars. Col. Menard spent four years in the Far East both as an officer in the pre-war Indian army and as a United Nations observer after the war.

● Population Unknown

India is a country of some 400,000,000 people of which only 13 per cent were literate, he said. The exact population would probably never be known as many births and deaths were never recorded. "People come and go and no one could care less".

In a country larger than Canada, the birth rate was estimated at 6,000,000 a year. If all the world's shipping was pressed into use "we couldn't bring them all to Canada".

Two hundred and twenty-three languages were spoken in the country and, broken down into religious groups, 100,000,000 people were Moslems, 250,000,000 were Hindus, 6,000,000 Sikhs, 8,000,000 were Christians and 28,000,000 were tribesmen, "who know no law and no god".

● Heavy Rioting

Feeling between the various religious groups was so high that, following the 1947 division of the sub-continent into the countries of India and Pakistan, 1,500,000 people were killed in one year of rioting.

Col. Menard said India is a widely varied country. There were places which experienced a yearly rainfall of 455 inches while other parts received only 3½ inches yearly.

While irrigation ditches and reservoirs had been built, there are not "one-tenth enough", he said. The principal problem was one of money. "While you can get labor for approximately four cents a day per man, you still have to feed him and his family".

● Two Monsoons

India, famous for its monsoon season, experiences two main monsoons, he said. The first, coming in from the southwest is very wet, while the second, coming from the northeast, is very dry.

"If it is favorable to the crops, the people will live. If not, they will starve" unless other countries send food.

"If we don't feed them, the Russians will. And when it comes to starvation, a people will follow anyone who feeds them."

Speaking of the country itself, he said there are large quantities of coal and iron to be found, but the two are far apart and the coal is approximately half the quality of that found in Wales. There were large quantities of other minerals and oil in some parts.

● Pakistan Production

Pakistan, he said, produces 3,750,000 tons of wheat a year for 90,000,000 people, approximately 12,000,000 gallons of petrol and 500,000 tons of coal.

In the north there are five main passes, some at an elevation of more than 16,000 feet. These could be used as invasion routes as had been proven in the past by Hannibal and Alexander the Great. In one range alone there are 10 peaks soaring to heights of more than 28,000 feet.

In these northern regions every bridge is dominated by small stone forts to prevent the tribesmen from blowing them up.

● Principles Unchanged

"As we go along, the principles of war don't change," he said. "It's only the application." He told of chicken wire around the forts to keep out grenades thrown in the darkness, and of farmers carrying Luger pistols.

"The caste system, no matter what they do to it, will always be there." He illustrated his address with photographs taken during his travels throughout the Northwest Frontier.

Col. Menard was introduced by Lt.-Col. R. E. Lucy, M.B.E., M.C., C.D., and thanked by Brig. K. B. Lockett, O.B.E., E.D.

THE MILITARY BALL

HIGHLIGHT of the Fall social season in Calgary was the Annual Military Ball held November 9 in the Palliser Hotel. The several hundred persons who attended again voted the ball an outstanding success.

In the receiving line were Cmdr. and Mrs. G. K. Whynot, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. R. E. Lucy, Group Capt. and Mrs. W. A. Mostyn-Brown and Col and Mrs. J. S. Ross.

MEMBERS HONORED

MEMBERS of the Alberta United Services Institute honored two of their own on December 6th when Col. D. G. L. Cunnington, O.B.E., M.C., V.D., and Major Harold Chambers were presented with a silver tray and a silver fruit dish respectively.

Col. Cunnington, who served as Institute President in 1927 and was Secretary for eight years prior to his recent retirement, was presented with his tray by Brig. Kenneth Lockett.

Major Chambers, Institute Librarian for the past eight years, was given his dish by Major Alfred Williams on behalf of the Institute.

NOTHING NEW UNDER SUN ?

THINGS are going to be "just all right" despite the threat of hydrogen bomb warfare, Major Frederick Burt Johns, a two-war veteran with a penchant for history and tradition, told members of the Alberta United Services Institute June 20. Major Johns, who is chief security officer for Canadian Pacific Airlines here, was speaking on "What's New in the Services".

And, according to the Major, there's nothing new in the technique of waging war. He said modern-day techniques are really "precepts founded in the earliest civilization."

Responsible people have long been predicting the annihilation of mankind by new weapons, he said.

● It Didn't Happen

"When the English first used the longbow in 1349 it was said 'the use of such inhuman weapons will annihilate the armies and will blow away the chaff from the fields,'" Major Johns said.

He gave many instances where techniques required regarding as the latest thing are really only imitations or developments of techniques used hundred and even thousands of years ago.

"There are far too many for it to be a coincidence," said Major Johns. "There is a thread of destiny which runs right through military history."

The pincer movement, usually regarded as being introduced in 1940, was actually used successfully in 450 B.C. during the Punic Wars, he explained. The practice of mentioning soldiers in dispatches was really started in 500 B.C. when Coriolanus was praised during a Roman campaign.

● Tanks With Trunks

Tank traps were not a development of the 20th century, he said. The idea originated in 452 B.C. in an effort to stall the advance of the elephant armies of those days.

Again, pensions and Veterans' Land Act plans as we know them today were really introduced before Christ. The Roman, Tiberius, conceived the soldiers' pension scheme in 133 B.C., while the first Roman triumvirate of Crassus, Caesar and Pompey had a program similar to V.L.A. operating in 61 B.C.

Two other examples he mentioned were camouflage which was first used by Romulus in 210 B.C., while commando tactics, another so-called modern technique, were used in 1361 by the Ukrainians.

Frogmen were used as early as 1861 and navy divers were introduced in 1839.

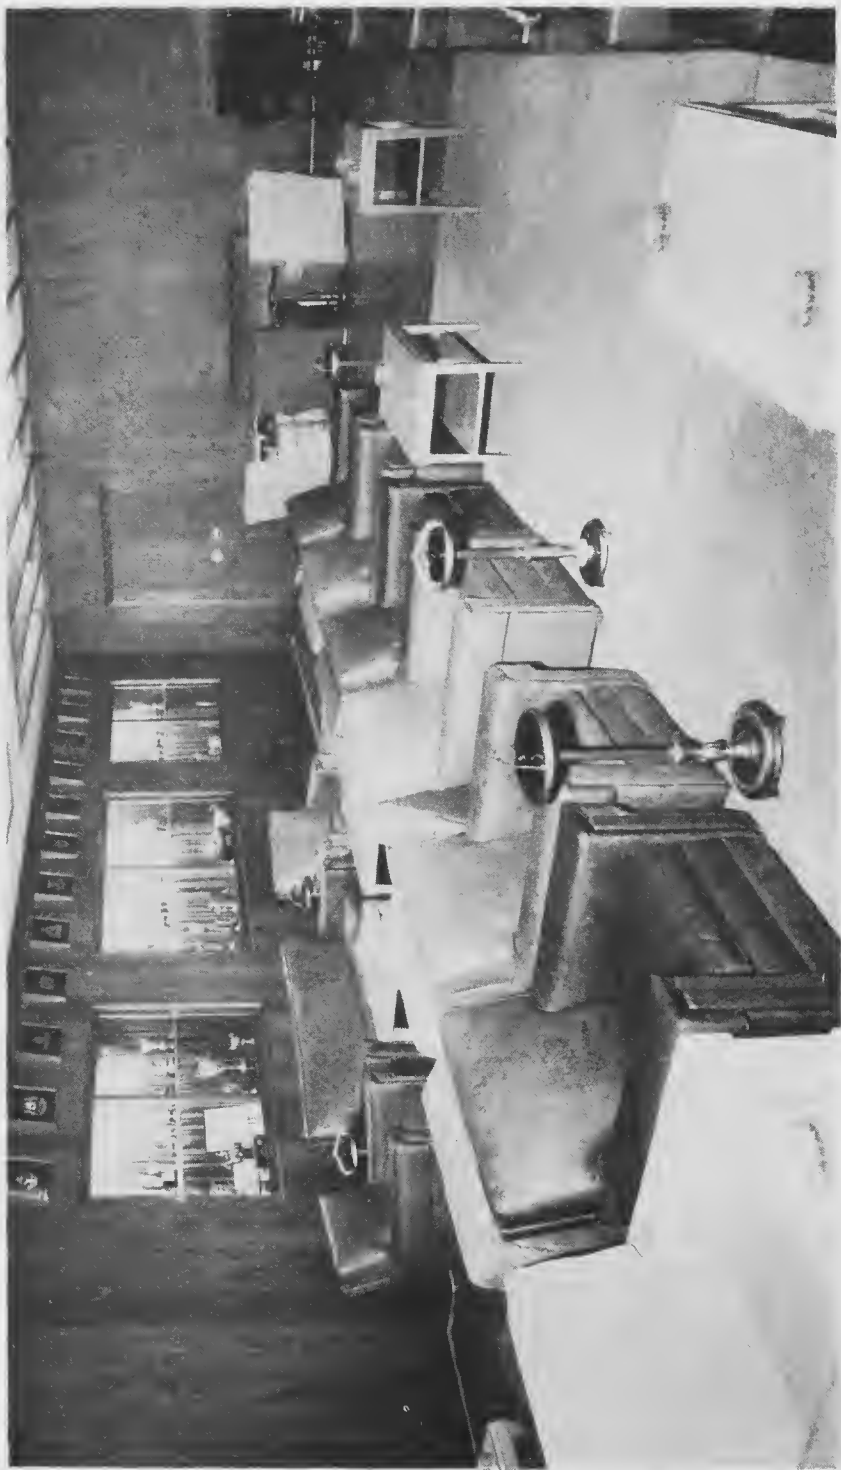

● Let's Hope So !

"There is only one thing about warfare that has no precedent and that because we have never been without it. Young men with new incentive and new desires keep coming up to serve us."

He told A.U.S.I. members he was confident that things are going to be "just all right" despite the threat of H-bomb warfare.

"Things are not going to change; men and tradition will see to that."

TWO VIEWS OF THE NEW LOUNGE

ROYAL ROMANCE UNLIKELY

LT.-COL. FRANK OWEN, O.B.E., British author and journalist, on March 30th promised the early retirement of Sir Winston Churchill as Prime Minister and held out little hope for development of the romance of Princess Margaret and her air force friend.

He made these predictions while addressing members of the Institute at the Officers' Mess, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Currie Barracks.

Col. Owen said Churchill was old and tired and under considerable pressure from friends to quit, while the romance of Princess Margaret was "up in the air, I don't know whether she is coming or going".

● Nothing to Story

He said he did not think there was anything to the story of Princess Margaret's romance with S/L Peter Townsend. People were, however, quite prepared to read about her romance . . . "but they will read about the Duchess of Windsor".

Col. Owen described Anthony Eden as Churchill's "crown prince", and said he would undoubtedly take over as prime minister. However he was not too strong physically and there were some members of the party who were suggesting Butler as premier.

Col. Owen was speaking to the subject "Survival of British Traditions" and, during an address packed with humor and information, he said the Royal Family had never been more popular in Great Britain than it is today.

● Election Predicted

There is, he added, an election coming and the Conservatives will win it.

Clement Attlee is the only person who can really hold the Labor Party together, he said. And, while most of the big trades unions were against Aneurin Bevan, "his support is from the constituent members".

Attlee, he said, was called "the archbishop of compromise" by the British press.

A few other quotes out of context:

The press: There is no one man who had control of the British press today. Of the eight big metropolitan dailies, seven are independently controlled. The influential provincial dailies all belong to "someone different".

● Two Problems

The press has, however, two problems outstanding among many problems: the Law of Libel and the Official Secrets Act. While libel might be immediately understood by all readers, the Official Secrets Act goes much deeper. An example is a public auction concerning letters of Henry VIII to Anne Bolyn. These were withdrawn from sale because they came under the Act.

The services: Traditions in the armed services "are as high as ever. They are not shaken by what has occurred in the last war or since". Korea is an excellent example of this, where the army set a magnificent example. "Our national service boys were excellently trained".

● Coal Big Question

Trade: Unemployment is almost nil and strictly seasonal, with not more than 200,000 people without jobs. The biggest problem is coal, with nationalization not working too well despite the fact that miners are being paid twice what they were in 1939. A big boom is also being recorded in steel, chemicals and oil refining.

"The survival of our old traditions", he said, "goes on in our Old Country today".

THE VIMY DINNER

THE dramatic charge that the democracies are "sick" was made in Calgary by Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, C.B.E., C.D., former adjutant general of the Canadian Army, while speaking at the annual Institute-sponsored Vimy Dinner in the Palliser Hotel April 16.

"It seems to me sometimes as if the life and vigor of our democracies have declined. We are beginning to resemble the Saxon ancestors of some of us who believed they could buy security with money and so paid the Danes to stay away.

"The late Mr. Mackenzie King thought like that and said in April, 1939, just four months before the Second Great War, that the days of the great expeditionary forces were over. He was living in a sort of dream world remote from the hard facts of life."

● Long Army Career

Gen. Macklin is a veteran of 39 years service with the Canadian Army. Now on retirement leave, he is the man who largely organized Canada's part in the Indo-China peace commission.

Terming the anti-colonial policy of the late President Roosevelt, "a hollow failure", Gen. Macklin said Roosevelt was "fanatically determined to liquidate all the European overseas empires.

"Apparently he thought this would create states friendly to the United States. Instead, his successors find a hornet's nest of people actively hostile to the 'imperialistic and aggression-loving, war-mongering Americans'.

"Stability has been replaced by chaos in wide and populous areas.

● No Absolute Weapon

"There is no absolute weapon, and probably there never will be. We have a weapon maybe 1,000 times more powerful than that of Hiroshima, but who will dare to use it when the enemy has it too.

"Therefore I say, conventional armed forces are still required. Many scoff at the soldier for preparing for the war before the last. If we had wanted to be right in Korea that is what we would have prepared for—1917, not 1944 or the comic-book scientists' dream of war in 1955.

"The sword may still be a useful weapon.

"Therefore I warn you, you can't buy peace with money, and you can't buy it with H-bombs alone. The age-long struggle is still with you.

"The armed forces of Her Majesty, strong and healthy, are still wanted. The perennial lie that they are composed of militarists and warmongers needs to be refuted. They are the greatest peace-makers of any. That is their primary function: to prevent war, not to make it."

● Roles Explained.

Gen. Macklin continued: "The business of the navy is to watch over such as pass on the seas upon their lawful occasions. The business of the air force is to guard the skies and keep the hawks from killing the chickens.

"The business of the army, which they have been very busy at these past five years, is to man the ramparts and keep the outer barbarians on the other side.

"I contend that there is a perpetual mortgage on freedom and if we do not pay the interest, tyranny will inevitably foreclose. The maintenance of adequate and efficient and diversified armed forces is part of that bill.

"You can't buy your freedom with money, and you can't secure it with atomic weapons by themselves. These lessons must be learned and as a free people we must persuade our government to act accordingly."

● Tactical Victory

Speaking to a formal dinner attended by nearly 200 prominent Calgary business men and regular and reserve force officers, Gen. Macklin said Vimy Ridge was a tactical victory with no profound strategic import. "In itself it decided nothing, but gave us a bastion a year later to help stabilize the front when Ludendorff made his desperate bid for victory in March, 1918."

For Canada, however, the battle was a "milestone in our national history, because there we emerged as a military power in our own right. We have gone on from that day until now, in 1955, when we sit among the councils of the great—and sometimes they even listen to us.

"I have no sympathy whatever for those feeble ones among us who are fond of whining about our national status. Some of them are now wailing that, having cast off the bonds of London, we are tied to the cartwheels of Washington.

● Inferiority Complex

"There never have been any particular heavy bonds fastening us to London since Confederation that I know of. They existed only in infantile imaginations of some Canadians who suffer chronically from an inferiority complex.

"And if now we must find ourselves sometimes dancing to Washington's piping, it is not this government or that government which brings this about. It is the inexorable influence of geography. We cannot escape it."

Gen. Macklin went on to say that Canada would be tied to the Washington wagon "only if we fail to do our duty and do not carry our proper share of the weight of continental defence.

"This will be expensive but we have got to face it."

He said Russia is not only a great aggressive state, but the headquarters of an international faith, "which amounts to the greatest conspiracy in history."

● World Conquest

The avowed objective of this conspiracy "is the conquest of the world, which is to be ruled under an absolute dictatorship from Moscow." While there have been setbacks and tactical and strategic changes of Russian foreign policy, "the men of the Kremlin have never for a second lost sight of the ultimate objective."

Canadian statesmen, he said, have failed to grasp the realities of the situation. "They simply don't seem to understand the nature of Russian imperialistic designs any more than they had understood Hitler in those years before the Second Great War.

"They are still mistaking treaties, conventions, protocols and charters for valid law. They leaned on what they called international law and failed to understand the simple thesis that a nation cannot be sovereign and at the same time submit to an outside code of law.

● Opposite Meanings

"So, as long as there are sovereign nations, in any true sense of the word, there cannot be any international law in the true sense of the word. The two terms have opposite meanings, and just don't go together."

In 1949 the National Defence College calculated the minimum amount of money needed for a significant operational navy and air force, and to keep the army on a "care and maintenance" basis only, at $600,000,000 for five years, he said. The treasury said that the economy would not stand this and $450,000,000 was the limit.

"No matter that this would not produce any workable force in being."

Gen. Macklin said that when he was appointed adjutant-general in 1949 all advertising for recruits stopped and he was ordered to recruit "to replace wastage and no more."

● Estimates Boosted

"So much for the foresight and acumen of our leaders five years ago. A year later they had boosted the defence estimates, not to our modest $600,000,000, but to more than $2 billion.

"They planned to spend $5,000,000,000 on rearmament."

Cause of this somersault in Canadian foreign and defence policy was the naked aggression of the North Korean Communists, armed and inspired by Moscow, "and the resulting terrific rise in the velocity of the wind through the halls of Congress in Washington."

He said British statesmen had always hoped and believed that China would break away from Russia. "It may be that China is no longer the tool of Russia, but so far, I have not detected signs that her policies differ."

Of the hydrogen bomb, Gen. Macklin said the United States had created a weapon that "frightens them as much as it does any potential enemy. They are like the Arab in the old tale. They have let the genii out of the bottle, and they don't know how to control him.

● "Hadrian's Wall"

"So we find ourselves in 1955 in a sort of crazy world, building radar watch towers from coast to coast and beyond . . . These are the modern equivalent of Hadrian's Wall."

Gen. Macklin said there is only one kind of war that can be waged "with a weapon so frightful as the H-bomb, and that is a total war. And I suspect that even the Russians know that nobody wins in a total war."

Threat of the use of the atomic and hydrogen bombs did not prevent Korea, or the entry of China into the war, it didn't prevent the Communist conquest of China, "a staggering blow to our position in the Far East", nor did it defer Communist intervention in Greece.

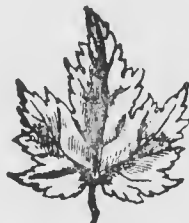

It didn't stop the Berlin blockade nor the present attempt to hamstring Berlin by exorbitant freight rates. Despite the interest of the Western world in the well-being of French Indo-China "the atomic threat had not the smallest effect in preventing the Communist operations of the Viet Minh forces there, which have now thrown France out of Viet Nam.

● No Deterrent

"This threat cannot deter political, economic or ideological warfare, and it likewise cannot deter the old-fashioned or conventional type of war.

"The truth is that the possession of atomic power is a tremendous deterrent to use of atomic power by somebody else, and that is about the only thing it does deter.

"It follows that if we sit back and depend on atomic power and nothing else, we lay ourselves wide open to defeat and destruction by an enemy who has atomic weapons and has infantry, artillery and tanks as well."

CANADA'S IMPORTANT ROLE

BRTAIN has made a very remarkable economic recovery during the last few years, Hon. R. F. Wood, British Conservative M.P., told A.U.S.I. members, February 17.

We are now paying our way abroad and our production and exports are higher than they have ever been before, but we realize that our future depends on our position as a leading member of the British Commonwealth. We believe that this Commonwealth of ours has an immensely important part to play in the future of the world.

Its nature has much changed in the last eight years, with the admission to full membership of the three Asian Dominions—India, Pakistan and Ceylon. It may change still further in the near future if a West Indian Dominion or a wholly African Dominion is also admitted. Whatever may be our feelings about the present policy of India, it may well be that she is able to succeed where other nations of the free world have so far not succeeded, in building a bridge between the free world and Asia. Similarly, if future African Dominions could lead to a strengthening of the bridge between the races in Africa, that would be an achievement which itself justified the existence of the Commonwealth, even if it had never done anything else.

● Problem of Peace

The greatest contribution which the Commonwealth can make is towards the solution of the greatest problem of all—the problem of peace. There may not be complete agreement on the means to achieve it, but we in Britain are in no doubt of the direction in which we should like to see the Commonwealth lead. We believe that the most hopeful future lies in reaching, if it can be reached, an agreement to differ with the Communist half of the world, to scale down armaments on both sides and peacefully to co-exist with it.

Naturally we cannot do this if the other half does not wish to co-exist with us, but the alternatives to co-existence seem very difficult indeed. One is that we should have a preventative war. I reject this on moral and other grounds and believe it is generally rejected in the free world. The other alternative is for us to continue indefinitely our present policy of the containment of Communism in the cold war.

● Three Arguments

There seem three arguments against this. First the difficulty which politicians in all the countries of the free world would have in persuading the democracies to continue to accept the burdens and sacrifices necessary to support the present high level of armaments, if it seemed to be leading nowhere and they could see no prospect of relief in the future. Secondly, we believe in a hot war the advantage would lie with the free world, which could hit the Communist land mass from almost all points of the compass: but in the cold war the initiative lies with them, for at any point on their immense circumference they can create trouble of various kinds and we can do nothing but try to plug the holes as they occur.

Lastly, we may be right in thinking that the Communist state or collection of states is subject to stresses and strains which may lead to its disintegration. In my opinion, this is more likely to happen if they are not surrounded by an unrelentingly hostile set of enemies.

● Canada's Role

In our policy for peace, it is essential that the United States and the British Commonwealth move closely together. Here, in my opinion, lies the most important contributions of all the important contributions which Canada can make in the future. You have close relations, economic and otherwise, with the United States. You are also a member of the Commonwealth. You are therefore uniquely well equipped to act as a bridge of understanding between the United States and Great Britain. If this country can continue in the future, as it has in the past, to act as an interpreter between the United States and the rest of the Commonwealth, you will be owed an immense debt not only by Britain but by the rest of the world.

Mr. Wood is the third son of Lord Halifax, former British Ambassador to Washington.

A.U.S.I. MEMBERSHIP LIST

THE utmost effort has been made to bring the membership list up-to-date as at December 31st, 1955, in spite of numerous changes of station and private address. If any member is aware of a change which has not come to the directors' notice, he will confer a favor by notifying the secretary.
